

Empire State Opioid Epidemic Innovation Challenge

September 28-30, 2018

Columbia University Fu Foundation School of Engineering and Applied Science

Srishti builds new companies towards a mission to make people healthier, through her role at Oxeon Venture Studio. Most recently she is co-founding a new business of evidence-based, community-linked treatment and recovery infrastructure to better support individuals, providers, and payers in the context of the opioid crisis. Srishti has been an entrepreneur partner developing new business models ranging from health system enterprise solutions to personalized cancer journey tools. Srishti's work at Oxeon is additionally affiliated with Town Hall Ventures, a healthcare-focused investing firm that prioritizes solutions providing better care for underserved populations. Srishti is a graduate of Columbia Business School earning an MBA with Dean's Honors with Distinction, and Washington University in St. Louis with majors in Economics and Healthcare Management.
